Doc, Collier's Nerve Fails On Confinement Case, Recovered Now

Doctor Collier, sterling M.D. of Letcher County who has brought more babies into the world than you can shake a stick at, found his nerve failed him the other night. Finding the door, biting his finger nails, otherwise exhibiting signs of extreme nervousness, Dr. Collier waited in an ant-room while Dr. Crawford brought the baby into the world. The only reason that we can offer to account for this extreme nervousness in an M. D. who has attended at the rites of hundreds of births, is the fact that the baby was his own. The young lady, weighed nine pounds at birth and has been named Margaret Fay. Both mother and babe are reported to be doing nicely, and it is perfectly evident that Doc has recovered.

JOHN H. POLLY FOR CLERK

To the People of Letcher County:

I wish to again make this statement for the benefit of those who may not know me personally. I am a son of Mr. and Mrs. Colonel Polly, of Whitesburg, married a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson R. Gibson of Whitesburg. My father was a son of Henry Polly, and my mother's maiden name was Ella Hall, a daughter of old Isom Hall of Mayking, she is a sister to Isom Hall Jr., Dave Hall, Josh Hall, Henry Hall and Charley Hall. My wife's mother's maiden name was Bettie Webb, a daughter of old W. W. Webb of Little Cowan Creek, so you can readily see that I am related to the Webbs, Adams, Pollys, Hall's, Elair's, Gibsons, Maggards and darn near to the whole Adam family. I wish to further say that I was born and raised on a farm in old Letcher County, and this is my first time to ask the good people of this County for any office. I am now asking you for the office of 'COUNTY CLERK' and if you will nominate me to this office, I will promise you that I will win for you in November. I am basing this statement on my 10 years of acquaintances with the miners in the coal fields and my broad relationship throughout the County. I am a poor man, now living on a farm on the highway near Mayking. I was taught by my good father and mother to live a clean life and to earn my living by honest work and to follow the old adage, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." This I have tried to do to the best of my ability. My full determination is to run a clean race win or lose. I want to say to you that soon after July 1st, that I expect to try and see every voter in this county before the election day, should I miss any of you, don't get offended at me, but just come on to the polls and vote for me anyway and I certainly will appreciate it. You will hear from me from time to time in the columns of this paper, so I will close by thanking you in advance for anything you may do for me.

Ermine Remax

According to the history of the world, civilization had a beginning. It started and moved until it produced a great flood, so they say. It started again way above and rapidly advanced as the population increased. Looking back the products and their kindred of Noah's vineyard have so flooded the earth that total destruction, as severe as they may be, have searched a place to hang their heads—where does civilization anchor today?—above or below?

Uncle Henry says that another flood will be a wonderful help to the farmers and business, provided the waters and bugs could be crowded. The word is so we say that the people should not be alarmed when it rained for 6 months. As to honest to goodness civilization, he prefers a return to the dark ages.

Have you ever read or heard about a man of pigments becoming tired of oppression and tyranny in the old world, seeking a new world, settling on the shores of our new world one bleak December day? Well they did. They built for the heart of man, the home, the soul, the dream. Between these two pillars of civilization, they built the little Red School House, which today, with the exception of the church is the greatest institution in the face of God's green earth, the school of the Republic. Again I wonder if you have ever stopped to consider how this great institution is neglected, insulted and abused. Have you ever examined the records to learn how appropriate for this institution compare with others and other things? Well, it would vomit a turkey buzzard. Did you ever realize that wages paid to teachers are far below the scale for trappers in a mine?

Trappers aren't overpaid either. Just how long can a nation exist that pays more for the suppression of crime, than for the training of its youth?

You may have noticed that there were no Ermine Remax in the last two issues. Well, after school closed, I tried to adjust myself to the garden and its related surroundings and the many interruptions by apparently a million inspired candidates, so disturbed my mind and conscience, that I did not have time to write. May the Lord be with you all in similar surroundings.

Into Every Life Some Joy Must Fall, Or Why Eds. Continue

The following letter, comes into the life of the editor of the Mountain Eagle as a rainbow following a storm. As every one knows who has ever been connected with a county paper, the life of the editor is no bed of roses. However, every now and then some kindly subscriber drops in with a friendly word of greeting, a little pat on the back, wipes away the sweat of the every day life. This letter written by one of our subscribers is indeed a "Ray of Sunshine." We most certainly will see that the young man receives his copy of the paper each week and hope that he gets as much joy out of reading it as we do in publishing it.

"Comrade F"

Editor Mountain Eagle,
Whitesburg, Ky.

Believe it or not I was surprised to find the Mountain Eagle over here in Hawaii.

I was visiting one of my "Buddies" the other day and found he had received a copy of it from home. So naturally I had to sit down and read it. I was thrilled to read my home town paper and the news of my native county.

They are quite a many of future citizens over here in the "Paradise of the Pacific" who are anxious to see the Mountain Eagle as they are to see the Statue of Liberty as they come back to take up the news where they left off, for I think the mountains are calling us all back.

I am sending this for our subscription of the good old paper have it to fly over as quick as it possibly can make it for we all are anxious to get it.

And if you have the room for our little ad to get it in please print it. Sincerely,
SAMUEL ADAMS

How New State Prison Will Look

Architect's drawing of the new state prison is shown above. The new institution which is to be erected on the prison farm of 2,800 acres recently purchased in Oldham County, will be one of the most modern prisons in the nation. All the better features of the best prisons in the United States have been combined in an effort to provide an institution that will make possible an intelligent effort to salvage those law violators who are convicted in courts.

Every cell will have an outside exposure, assuring healthful, sanitary conditions. This the most modern prison will replace the old reformatory at Frankfort which is perhaps the most inadequate, unwholesome prison to be found in any state. The new structure is being built with money obtained from the PWA and a state appropriation made by the last legislature.

This is the first major project undertaken in an effort to rehabilitate the antiquated penal and charitable institutions of the state.

The prison at Edwsville is being enlarged and will be used as the institution in which is confined prisoners of the type that require maximum security.

Inmates of the old Frankfort reformatory, which was rendered uninhabitable by the flood, are now quartered in temporary barracks on the Oldham county prison farm. Their labor is being utilized in improving the farm and in producing food stuff which will be used in the state institutions.

Reports Study Of Louisville Fruit, Vegetable Market

The importance of Louisville as a wholesale fruit and vegetable market is emphasized in a bulletin reporting on a study made by the Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky. Between 11,000 and 12,000 carloads are handled on the market yearly. Fruits and vegetables are shipped into Louisville from every important producing area in this country as well as from some foreign countries.

The Louisville market serves Southern Indiana and all of Kentucky except the extreme western and eastern counties and north-eastern counties.

The growth of trucking has helped the Louisville market, the bulletin points out, because of the city's location with respect to markets in northern and southern states. Located on north-south arterial highways and midway between important northern and southern markets, Louisville is a convenient point for the exchange of produce.

Thus the city has become the terminus for fleets of trucks operating from the northern producing areas and from the southern producing areas. It is noted that this situation provides opportunities for the sale of locally-grown fruits and vegetables, and lays the foundation for a large wholesale fruit and vegetable market which will not only serve the city of Louisville but will supply a much larger trade territory than is reached at the present time.

Farm Program Big Lift To Stockmen

Inquiries for cows and breeding stock continue to indicate a steadily growing interest in dairying in Kentucky, according to a statement from the College of Agriculture at Lexington. Farmers are not only milking more cows but are demanding better cows, says Prof. Fordyce Ely.

Beginning July 1, there will be eight dairy herd improvement associations in the state, containing about 170 herds and 3,700 cows. Each association employs a leader who ferrets out the poor producing cows, which are sold and replaced with better stock. Help also is given association members in problems of feeding, breeding and management and in the care and handling of milk, cream and other dairy products.

Prof. Ely calls attention to the fact of the national farm program to cow owners. "Through the great increase in the production of home feeds as a result of the farm program, dairy men will find cows more profitable than ever, he believes. Vast acreages of alfalfa, clovers, lespedeza and other hay and pasture crops are being sown in every county in the state.

In growing these hay and pasture crops farmers improve their land and provide much-needed home feed supplies and at the same time put themselves in position to receive payments from the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Sheep breeders and beef cattle raisers also are finding that the farm program fits in with their plans to increase livestock production and diversify their farming operations.

Clatswell county home-makers plan to can at least 100 quarts of 12 kinds of food for each member of the family.

Forty acres of alfalfa were sown this spring for demonstration purposes in Letcher county.

Vaccination has checked the appearance of hog cholera in several Kentucky counties.
